

Culture in Academic Medicine Series

SERIES OVERVIEW

The culture of academic medical institution impacts trainee education, faculty, staff and patient outcomes. Respectful environment facilitates learning, creates a sense of safety, and rewards professionalism. UCR SOM is committed to better understand and improve climate concerns and to engage faculty, staff and students at all levels in creating safe and respectful culture. The series provides an opportunities to discuss the interprofessional issues, generational and cultural divides in a respectful manner and offers a perspective on this challenging and complex topic.

September 2, 2021 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Mariam Lam Pd.D. & erin rook, M.S. The Office of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion
Climate Challenges in the Field of Medicine

October 7, 2021 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Martin Garcia-Castro, Ph.D.
Career options in Academic Medicine: Path to Independent Research Faculty Position

November 4, 2021 at 5:00pm (in-person)
Jason Higginson, M.D.
Teachers of Quality Academy: Optimizing Faculty Development

December 2, 2021 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Kendrick Davis, Ph.D. and Rosemary Tyrrell, Ed.D.
Culturally Responsive and Inclusive Teaching

January 6, 2022 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Gregory Guldner, M.D.
Teaching toward Wellness—The A, B, C's of How Your Teaching Styles Impact Learner Well-Being

February 3, 2022 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Rosemary Tyrrell, Ed.D.
Writing Letters of Recommendation

March 3, 2022 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Brigham Willis, M.D.
Leading in Academic Medicine: Where are we going, and how do we get there?

April 7, 2022 at 5:00pm (Hyflex) G650
Pablo Joo, M.D.
Frameworks for Leadership Pathways in Academic Medicine for Mentors and Mentees

May 5, 2022 at 5:00pm (virtual)
Adwoa Osei, M.D.
Having Difficult Conversations

Most activities listed have been approved for AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™.